

New work orders this month: generated by corrective action requests, scheduled PMs, and department generated work.

Completed work orders this month: generated by corrective action requests, scheduled PMs, and department generated activity. The lower number for July reflects an unusual combination of vacation absences, a position vacancy, and more labor hours expended on fewer specific work orders.

The July total is primarily reflective of auto-generated PM work orders which have either been deferred due to the vacancy in one Skilled Maintenance Worker position (new hire scheduled for 9/18/17) or which have been completed by contractors but not closed.
